for montessori and Reggio classrooms montessori and Reggio classrooms run on observation. tiny signals carries an observation-led writing layer with no behaviorist labels and no curriculum imposed on the room.

observation-led

- the teacher's observations are mirrored, not replaced. no fabricated detail and no language about what the child should have done.
- no scoring, no rating, no ranking. the writing describes what happened and what the child was working on.

what it covers

conference write ups, family handoffs, incident notes, and asq for programs that screen.

what it is not

not a curriculum, not a montessori album, not a replacement for a portfolio system.
